

FRANCISCO O. MORA

U.S. Department of State

United States Permanent Representative to the Organization of American States (OAS), rank of Ambassador (January 2023-January 2025). As a Senate-confirmed ambassador, I represented the US government before the OAS and all entities of the Inter-American System. Engaged in diplomacy and policy-making on a diverse range of issues, including democracy, human rights, security and development – the key pillars of the OAS. Negotiated resolutions and other binding documents before the Permanent Council (particularly in the area of the environment and the defense of democracy) and led missions on behalf of the US government and the OAS to resolve disputes or crises in the hemisphere. The US Mission to the OAS has a staff of 17 foreign service and civil service employees. TS/SCI security clearance.

Led the initiative that resulted in the first increase in the institution's budget in more than a decade, and negotiated/pushed a series of reforms that contributed to the restructuring and modernizing of the organization, particularly as it relates to its governance. Managed a budget of approximately $20 million in grants and other economic support funds focused on the promotion of democracy, human rights, environmental security, AI standardization, and integral development in the Americas.

United States National Summit Coordinator (July 2023-January 2025). Represented the United States and led the inter-agency process (coordinating US efforts) for the Summit of the Americas. The Summit is the premier forum where heads of state of the Americas meet every 3-4 years to negotiate and chart the hemispheric agenda. The Summit Coordinator leads US diplomatic initiatives in setting the agenda and planning for the participation of the US President at each of the Summits of the Americas.

Florida International University

Director, Kimberly Green Latin American and Caribbean Center, Green School of International and Public Affairs (June 2013 – July 2020). Led a multidisciplinary research and academic institution – one of 16 in the country dedicated to the study and research of Latin America and the Caribbean designated by the US Department of Education as a National Resource Center – with responsibilities for coordinating efforts across departments and programs at FIU.

Led a team of 12 staff members with an annual budget of about $1million. In addition to raising funds ($2.5 million) for naming-rights of the Center, we raised approximately $8 million in government and private sector grants and contracts during my tenure as LACC director. Most of this funding was provided by the Department of Defense (US Southern Command), Department of Education, Department of State (International Narcotics) and the US Agency for International Development. The university's ties with the Department of Defense and other federal agencies in providing rigorous research and workshops deepened as a result of this support/engagement.

At the core of much of the center's funded research was supporting faculty in their work bridging scholarly and policy research. The strategic plan approved by the university dean, provost and president underscored the importance of having the center and its interdisciplinary research team be not just observers or commentators of the policy debate but a participant, helping to shape policies and advice policymakers.

Finally, LACC engaged in dozens of outreach activities a year with the local and national media as well as community organizations. Workshops, seminars, and capacity-building programs, often in partnership with public schools and non-governmental organizations, were organized throughout the year, mostly funded by the Department of Education and private sector partners. As a result of this work, FIU designated LACC a Preeminent Research Program, allowing it to receive additional research funds from the university.

Professor, Department of Politics and International Relations (June 2013 – present). Teach graduate and undergraduate seminars on the comparative politics and international relations of Latin America and the Caribbean. Advise Ph.D. students on the comprehensive exams and dissertation proposals and final product. Responsibilities also include an active research agenda; published works appear in scholarly outlets and public policy publications.

Research Scientist, Jack D. Gordon Institute for Public Policy (January 2025 – present). Member of a team involved in a government-funded research project developing new methodologies to study and forecast insecurity in Central America. Also, serve as peer reviewer for policy papers submitted to the Gordon Institute as part of its Policy Innovation paper series.

U.S. Department of Defense

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense, Western Hemisphere Affairs (Apr 2009 – Jan 2013). As the principal advisor to the Assistant Secretary/HD&ASA (ASD), Under Secretary of Defense (P), and Secretary of Defense, as the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (DASD) for Western Hemisphere Affairs, had primary responsibility for all policy matters of Defense interest pertaining to the countries of the Western Hemisphere. The duties included: (a) providing advice at the ASD and higher level on key strategy, planning, programming and budgeting and policy matters; (b) representing DoD at important policy meetings in the United States and throughout the Western Hemisphere (c) participating in the study, review, and adjustment of the strategies, concepts, programs, and budgets required to support Office of Secretary of Defense policy and program planning guidance; (d) providing the focal point for policy guidance and coordinating staff action on National Security and White House requests for research and analysis of a wide variety of politico-military-economic questions; (e) implementing a human capital strategy to enhance the quality and quantity of the team's work; (f) establishing and maintaining contacts at counterpart policy levels in the Department of State, Congress, National Security Council, Western Hemisphere Ministries of Defense, and Foreign Affairs, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Military Departments, and other offices on matters of mutual concern; (f) developed and implemented a Western Hemisphere Defense Policy/Strategy. Senior Executive Service. Office of the Secretary of Defense Medal for Exceptional Public Service; Department of Defense, January 2013. TS/SCI security clearance.

National Defense University – National War College

Professor (Jul 2004 – Apr 2009). Responsible for teaching national security strategy and Latin American studies to senior military and civilian personnel/leaders. Also responsible for designing core courses of the curriculum, specifically a revamped Global Security course. Advised the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Staff on Latin American security and defense policy issues and US policy toward the Americas.

Rhodes College

Department of International Studies: Associate Professor (May 2000 – June 2004); Assistant Professor, (Aug 1994 - May 2000); Chair (2000 – 2002), Senior Latin American Studies Research Fellow (2001 – 2004); Founding Chair, Latin American Studies Program (1996--2000); Rhodes College is a liberal arts institution in Memphis, TN. Taught and advised undergraduate students and founded the Latin American Studies Program at Rhodes. Served as faculty mentor to Sigma Iota Rho (honor society) and Modus Vivendi (peer-reviewed student journal of international studies. Tenured in 2000 and promoted to the rank of Associate Professor. Served as chair of the Department of International Studies with seven faculty members and two staff.

University of Miami

Visiting Associate Professor, Department of International Studies (Aug 2002-Jun 2003); Lecturer, History Department (Aug 1991 – May 1994); Distinguished Hispanic Scholar in International Studies (1990).
